GRIEVANCE OF INSTITUTE OF AMERICAN MEAT PACKERS

Washington, Jan. 17.—The attention of members of congress was called today by the Institute of American Meat Packers, through its Washington office, to proposals submitted to the British parliament regarding the meat industry and said to be designed to restrain American packers from further extending their world trade.

The institute, in an open letter to senators and representatives transmitting a report to parliament by a sub-committee of the standing committee on trade, says this report was a "consequence of the deliberate circulation in foreign countries by the federal trade commission" of the commission's report on its investigation of the "Big Five" packers conducted several years ago by direction of President Wilson.

It is charged by the institute that the trade commission, in its report, furnished copies of its report to representatives here of foreign governments, but also asked the diplomatic bureau of the state department to transmit copies of the report direct to those governments.

The commission, it is charged, further sent to the diplomatic bureau a form letter to be used in transmitting the report which said:

"There is enclosed herewith a copy of the summary of the report of the federal trade commission on the meat industry which was recently released for publication by President Wilson, and which may be of interest to your government."

"By this form letter," says the institute's communication, "President Wilson was made to extend the invitation to foreign governments to take the 'fundamental action' which the commission said was necessary to prevent international control of meat products by the American packers."

The institute's letter goes on to say that members of congress after reading the British committee's report which quotes at great length from the trade commission report, "will appreciate the serious disaster which threatens the livestock industry of this country as a consequence of the deliberate circulation in foreign countries by the federal trade commission of its false and unjust charges against the American packers."

The British committee's report, a direct result of which was published recently in the United States, says "no complaint was made (at hearings held by it) of unfair trading on the part of the American companies beyond severe cutting of prices for the purpose of developing trade or clearing surplus stocks." But it charges that "there is at least a tacit understanding between the American meat companies to respect each other's position which secures to them all the economic advantages of an active combination."

The committee finally recommends that "it should be the declared policy of his majesty's government to prevent the percentage of the beef trade, which is at present in foreign hands, from increasing to the loss of producers at home and in the dominions and of British importing companies," and that expansion of foreign markets for such products should be restricted by taxation and subsidizing refrigerated shipping companies.

HEARING ON REGULATION OF FUTURE EXCHANGES

Washington, Jan. 17.—Several proposals of bills to regulate future exchanges which are now under consideration by the house agriculture committee, said frankly today they did not expect the enactment of such legislation at this session, principally because of time. They added, however, that they expected the hearings now being held by the committee to result in a basis being laid for such legislation at the next session.

Two witnesses are yet to be heard by the committee before the hearings are brought to a close. Herbert Hoover, former food administrator, will appear on Thursday and Clifford Thorne, representing the American Farm Bureau Federation, will be heard on next Tuesday.

At today's hearing, Julius H. Barnes, former head of the United States Grain Corporation, urged that the proposed regulatory measures be not enacted until a national marketing commission of men familiar with the subject can be appointed to conduct an exhaustive investigation of the situation.
